All hands on deck

After an exciting and relaxing summer, students must come back to reality and hit the books. But before doing so, we have the joys of move-in day, the Freshman matriculation ceremony, and the race to the bookstore to buy our piles of textbooks.

All Freshman must participate in a program called the First Year Colloquium. There are a number of different courses offered, and many of them go out in the field they're studying. For this class, students went on a canoeing trip!

Every year some members of R-MC's fraternities and sororities come to school early to help with the freshman move in. It's a daunting task, but someone has to do it!

Campus Events

Whether they are laughing with the comedian Josh Blue, bowling with a frozen turkey, or participating with friends in the ever-popular Inter-mural sports games, R-MC students know how to have a good time!

Josh Blue, Last Comic Standing
CAB sponsored comedian Josh Blue to perform for students and the Ashland community to kick off the new school year. The event was a huge success, as there were no empty seats left in Crenshaw gymnasium.

Homecoming

Homecoming weekend began with a Homecoming Parade down Henry Street with floats from a variety of different student organizations, which kicked off the football game against Guilford College.

The Life of a Pirate

No matter what they're wearing or who they're with, RMC students know how to have a good time. With just about everybody living on campus, there is always something fun to do!

Hampden-Sydney Week

"The Game," this year's 113th game between Randolph-Macon and Hampden-Sydney, was held in Farmville, Virginia. "The Game" concluded a week-long competition between the two schools, such as blood drives, car washes, and debates.

Students gather in Estes to participate in a wing eating contest, while others stand by to cheer them on. Participants consisted of representatives from different campus organizations.

Presidential Inauguration

President Bob Lindgren, the college's fifteenth president, was inaugurated October 27, 2006 in Blackwell Auditorium. Over 650 guests attended the special ceremony that afternoon. A dinner was held in honor of President Lindgren's inauguration, held in the Brock Center.

All photos courtesy of Marketing and Communications.

"Leadership does not mean settling for something less; leadership means holding each and every part of this College to the highest standard of excellence in each and everything we do."

- President Bob Lindgren

"Randolph-Macon is among the most selective, residential liberal arts colleges in America and among the very best true liberal arts colleges in the Commonwealth. Our goal is to be a leader in all that we do, all the while ensuring that the liberal arts education we offer remains the best educational experience for undergraduates anywhere in the world."

- President Bob Lindgren

The Inauguration Ceremony was held in Blackwell Auditorium. Distinguished guests, including former Presidents of R-MC, Richmond Mayor Doug Wilder, as well as many members of the Richmond, Ashland, and Randolph-Macon community were in attendance.

Students perform during the Inauguration dinner in honor of President Lindgren.

"Now is the time for Randolph-Macon."

Current student leaders, as well as alumni, were invited to celebrate with President Lindgren at the Inaugural dinner.

Dance Marathon

The 6th Annual Randolph-Macon Dance Marathon was held Saturday, March 10th in the Brock Center. Since 2002, the college has raised more than $110,000 for numerous families of the Children's Miracle Network. This year, they raised $15,012.79.

The Steering Committee gathers together to present the check for the Children's Miracle Network at the final hour of Dance Marathon. "Dance Marathon has really become a major event here at the college. We have a committee made up entirely of students who dedicate about seven months to planning the event," - Dance Marathon chair and R-MC Senior Jason Carmichael. Photo courtesy of Lauren Soles.

One of the activities to keep the students engaged included Twister.

Spring Break

One of the biggest rites of passage for a college student is their annual spring break trip. Some fly south to work on their tans, others use their time to help those in need, and some just enjoy time with family! No matter what they do, nobody wants to come back to school!

Setting Sail

On April 16, 2007, the students at Randolph-Macon watched along with the nation at the tragedy happening just hours away at Virginia Tech. This incident hits close to home, with many people from our own community knowing those that were lost or affected. During the week following, the R-MC community came together to show that 'We are all Hokies'.

First and foremost, I would like to thank the Yearbook advisor, Dr. Connors, who has been there for all of our needs and lent a helping hand in all ways possible. When we decided to do a pirate theme this year, she requested at least one 'aarrgh!' in the book, so there it is! To the Yearbook staff Virginia Seatherton and Kelly Tu, for all of their hard work and dedication. Without them, this book would not be complete. To John Kirby and Skip Rowland who took all of our sports pictures, and Chris Kilcoyne for providing us access to those pictures. To some of the students and staff from Randolph-Macon, including Christina Brown, Gregg Hillmar, and the Marketing and Communications department who provided various pictures throughout the year, as well as students who have provided their own personal pictures. Special thanks goes out to Jason Baranowski, our Student Representative, and Lifetouch for taking our student pictures. On behalf of the Yearbook staff, we are all extremely pleased with this year's book, and hope you are as well.
